

Travel fund for early career researchers at the University of Basel

Information

The travel fund is for early career researchers at the University of Basel and makes awards to young researchers from the doctoral stage onwards in order to develop skills and knowledge in research.

Funding possibilities

The following will be financially supported

- Attendance at an international scientific meeting with a presentation (Poster, lecture).
- Research journeys of a short duration (eg archive or library visits, max. 10 days).
- Exceptionally, researchers in social sciences, the humanities, economics, law, and theology may be given the opportunity to participate in international scientific events without a presentation (poster, lecture), if the relevance to their own research area is established.

Target audience

Early career researchers include matriculated doctoral candidates, Postdocs and habilitation candidates of the University of Basel. Exceptionally, Master's graduates can ask for a contribution if they present the results of their own research at an international congress.
