Master programs (Master of Arts)

According to the regulation for master studies at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences either two subjects or a master study program must be chosen. In master studies with two subjects these two subjects can basically be freely combined. But none of them may be a curricular option or a major (as regards content) of the other subject (combinations that are not possible are: German Language and Literature/German Literature, History/East European History). One of the two subjects need not belong to the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences. Only the subject Geography (which does not belong to the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences) can be combined with another subject not belonging to the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences. Such a combination can only be accepted in reasoned cases and on request to the Examination Commission of the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Subjects at other universities

If one of the chosen subjects is not offered at the University of Basel, it can probably be studied at another university (in combination with the subject offered at the University of Basel). In order to do this you must hand in an application together with a learning agreement. The learning agreement contains the curricular structure of the subject, the credit points to be obtained, the corresponding examinations and evaluations and the calculation of the final mark of the subject. The application will be accepted by the Faculty with the reservation that the other university agrees.

Commencement of studies Possible in the fall and spring semester. The master study program Critical Urbanisms can be commenced in the fall semester only.
